Kittens, Kittens Everywhere!

It's raining cats and dogs!

Okay, not really, BUT! It really is raining buckets this week! And there are still kittens at the Metro Animal Shelter looking for their Forever Families! Not to mention, there's more on the way!

The precious little kittens you see in the photo are currently still in foster care, but they'll be head to the shelter for adoption in about three weeks time. These hungry little furballs are growing every day, and their foster parents are making sure that they'll be strong and healthy for when they start looking for their Forever Families. Their foster parents are also helping them learn good litter box habits, how to play, and that humans are good – especially the ones that bring food!

Keep an eye on Metro Animal Services website for when the featured five kittens come in for adoption, along with the several others still in foster care!

Who knows, your family's new addition could be waiting for you!
