Ring in the New Year with Safety!

Most of the holiday season is focused around Christmas, but there is also another holiday that needs to be taken into consideration – especially if you have pets.

New Year's Eve and New Year's Day.

While it's often a huge celebration and party for all of us, it's less of one for our pets. Between the parties and the drinking, and the fireworks, too, there's a lot that could be harmful and dangerous for our pets on the last night of 2017 and first morning of 2018.

Though the article was written in 2016, with tips for celebrating the beginning of 2017 with your pets, the information provided by the ASPCA is still relevant for this year. There's a lot of potentially harmful aspects of our celebration that could turn the party into a trip to the emergency vet. With these tips, you can keep your pet safe and happy, and enjoy your New Year celebration!
